Customer Reviews

Take the $10 you were going to use to buy this book, and go bet it on black. I wish I had. First, let me say that this book is not a long term winning strategy and it is very, very misleading. The betting strategies he recommends may possibly be decreasing variance (that is, the range that winning/losing streaks will take you), but it does not decrease the house edge in any way and actually puts you at a greater long term disadvantage. He recommends an extreme deviation from basic strategy in Black Jack. He uses some mathematically correct but extremely misleading statements to convince you why you should deviate from basic. For example he says you should always stand if you could possibly bust (you have a hard 12 or higher) regardless of what the dealer has because the dealer is more likely to bust than you. While technically true in some cases, due to the fact that a dealer has to keep hitting while he's below 17, this does not take into account the dealer getting a 17-21 and beating you which is why it is sometimes mathematically better to take a hit depending on what the dealer has. In other words he's saying I should stand on a 12 against a dealer 7, because the dealer is more likely to bust than me, but if you factor in the likelihood of the dealer getting a 17-21, the math, and millions of computer simulations, and any credible mathematician you talk to, will confirm that you should take a hit. He says that everyone has been "fooled" into playing basic strategy as the optimum way of playing against a randomized deck or in online play. In essence, he is saying that all those mathematicians and computer scientists and millions of computer simulations are wrong and he has figured out something better by talking to a drunk Ukrainian.

we were traveling on Highway 40 through Arizona on the way to L.A. a few days ago. Along the way are 2 or 3 casinos. We stayed the night in Albuquerque the night before we hit Arizona and my wife bought and downloaded Secret of Blackjack. We went to eat before heading to bed and she kept her nose in the Kindle the whole time we were at dinner. When bedtime approached, she told me I needed to read the book. "Or at least read these sections," and she handed it to me. After 370 miles of driving that day, the last thing I wanted to do was read a book. She wanted to stop at Vegas "on the way" to L.A. and try these techniques and I told her there was no way, plus we couldn't make my conference if we did that. But she insisted I read a couple of paragraphs. I have to tell you... after a couple of HOURS (not paragraphs), I knew this was something I'd never heard before. I had played using "basic strategy" my whole life. That means, I've always lost a little less than others! But now, this was a REAL change from the norm, a way to attack the deck differently from what I'd ever experienced. I laid awake most of the night trying to figure out a way to fit 2 days of Vegas travel to our trip before my conference but there was no way. The info was BURNING to be tried. But then the answer came to us as we passed through Arizona! Arizona has casinos and a nice one is right there on Highway 40! We stopped and stayed and played. I took to Vegas's techniques better than Jodie did, but she didn't seem to care as long as we won more than lost! So she bowed out, stood behind me, and I just went to town. Obviously, we hit the same casino on the way back.
